

Army Is Accused Of Resisting Plan To Build Defenses

Major Phillips Asserts That Anti-Aircraft Guns Are Ineffective; He Blames

Issue Is Open

Turbulent Debate Leaves
Unanswered Status of
"Pelley" Letters

Washington, Feb. 2 (AP)—The army was charged by one of its own officers today with "resisting" reinforcement of the nation's air raid defenses, and with failure to develop effective weapons.

Major Thomas R. Phillips, instructor at the Command and General Staff School, asserted that the army's standard mobile three-inch anti-aircraft gun was far shorter in range than larger cannon used in the European war.

The machine guns on which the army relies for defense against low-flying warplanes, he said, "are not now and never have been effective weapons" for the purpose.

"While aviation has progressed by yearly bounds, American anti-aircraft has devoted itself to refinement of the material of ten years ago," Phillips, an air defense specialist, wrote in the Coast Artillery Journal. "It no longer can fulfill its mission."

Gen. George C. Marshall, army chief of staff, was quoted by House military committee members earlier this week as telling the committee that a $40,000,000 expenditure, chiefly for an air-raid warning system, was of the "first priority" among army needs.

Phillips laid part of the responsibility for "our lagged anti-aircraft preparations" to conservatism of the older military branches, which he declared also lacked enthusiasm for recent expansion of the air corps.

At the capitol, instead of settling the Dies committee controversy over the "Pelley" letters—called forgeries in secretary testimony—a turbulent House debate left unanswered today the question of whether they should be stricken from the Congressional Record.

Rep. Hook (D-Mich.) placed the letters in the Record last week. Then the committee declared that David Mayne of Washington had admitted forging them, and Hook tried yesterday to withdraw them.

But Rep. Keefe (R-Wis.), blocked him on the ground that the letters reflected on Chairman Dies (D-Tex.) and that Hook himself had not admitted their falsity. The letters purported to link Dies with William Dudley Pelley, chief of the Silver Shirt Legion.

The argument in the House which followed Hook's unsuccessful attempt brought from Rep. Voorhis (D-Calif.), a committee member, the statement that Mayne once served as a committee agent.

Voorhis, who described the letters as "rank forgeries," told the House of a long and still active search for Pelley. He said that Mayne had been recommended to the committee by "a very prominent person in Washington" whose name he would not disclose.

Mayne, Voorhis continued, presented himself to the committee last December and said he could turn up Pelley. He was dispatched to North Carolina, Pelley's home, with the committee paying his expenses, but Pelley never has appeared at committee hearings.

"We never felt Mr. Mayne was a paragon of virtue," Voorhis said, "but we were clutching at straws and hoping he might accomplish that purpose."

In the blazing give-and-take debate in which some of the hottest words were retracted, Rep. Marston (Ala.) declared that Rhea Whitley, Dies committee counsel, had resigned.

Excerpts From His Message

Hyde Park, N. Y., Feb. 2 (AP)—President Roosevelt told reporters in firm tones today he was standing on his budget and a $900,000,000 agricultural appropriation for the year beginning July 1.

He said the house appropriations committee, which slashed the farm appropriation bill 20 per cent below budget estimates, had made "perfectly terrific cuts. The bill is pending in the house."

Westerners Report Strong Sentiment Exists for F. D. R.

Brodrick Says Kansas Is Strong for Roosevelt and Washingtonian
Says Same Thing

Washington, Feb. 2 (AP)—Early arrivals from the west for Monday's meeting of the Democratic national committee reported today that strong sentiment existed in their states for renomination of President Roosevelt.

Lynn Brodrick, Kansas national committee member, said: "Kansas is strong for Roosevelt and I feel the same way."

Ed A. Carroll, national committee member for Washington state, expressed the belief his state would "favor a third term if it were voting today," while Charles J. Vogel, new member from North Dakota, asserted:

"My state is very pro-Roosevelt, but I have no statement further on a third term."

The committee is slated to pick a time and place for the party's presidential nominating convention. As the western committeemen talked of current trends, reports persisted that the convention date—many favor early August—should be selected by a subcommittee.

Eight 'At-Large' Delegates Listed

Dewey's Supporters Claim
Majority of Six; Two Others for Gannett

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 2 (AP)—Eager to avoid factional strife, New York Republican leaders placed a limited list of supporters of both the state's presidential candidates before the state committee today for selection of eight delegates-at-large to the party's national convention.

But with forces of Manhattan Prosecutor Thomas E. Dewey claiming a substantial majority on the committee, chieftains foresaw probable naming of at least six persons favorable to his candidacy and supporters of Frank Gannett, Rochester publisher, to the remaining two places.

Dewey announced his candidacy in December at behest of a group of state committee members and other leaders. Gannett, who entered the field two weeks ago, entered the field with an untried delegation.

Most prominently mentioned for the "big eight" selection at the committee meeting (2 p. m. EST) are State Chairman William S. Murray, Utica; Kenneth F. Simpson and Mrs. Ruth Baker Pratt, members of the Republican national committee; Assembly Speaker Oswald D. Heck, Schenectady; Dewey's upstate campaign manager, Edward H. Butler, Buffalo publisher; Jerome D. Barnum, Syracuse publisher.

Col. Theodore Roosevelt, New York's former Supreme Court Justice William F. Bleakley or Assemblywoman Jane H. Todd, Westchester county; William S. Hill, Broome county Republican leader; Mrs. Charles Weiss, Rochester; and Ernest D. Leet, Jamestown, president of the State Association of Young Republican Clubs.

Leet, seeking "recognition" of the delegates-at-large slate for Young Republicans, said he had "assurances of support" from "prominent state party leaders."

At the same time, upstate leaders bid for at least three of the places on the premise approximately two-thirds of the Republican vote for Dewey in 1938, last gubernatorial election year, was cast north of New York city.

Eight alternates-at-large also will be selected by the committee. The remaining 85 of New York's 93 delegates will be elected at the April 2 primary. Petitions for these posts must be filed by February 27.

Britain Opposes Tunnel to France Tabu

London, Feb. 2 (AP)—The British government still is opposed to a tunnel under the English Channel to France, a project said to have been suggested by Napoleon and once actually begun.

Prime Minister Chamberlain told a House of Commons questioner yesterday he saw no reason to change the government's rejection of the tunnel idea in 1930 when it was regarded as impractical.

Digging started in both England and France almost 80 years ago and a tube extended almost two miles out from a point near Dover when Parliament stopped the work.

Employer-Worker Bills Are Started Through Capitol

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 2 (AP)—First bills in a broad program to improve employer-worker relations in New York industry started through the legislature today with support that virtually assured their enactment.

Irving M. Ives, Republican Assembly majority leader and chairman of a bi-partisan legislative committee on whose two-year study the legislation is based, introduced measures which:

Authorize the state labor relations board to permit bargaining agency elections on an employers' property during working hours.

Mandate the board to investigate any employer allegation of controversy over representation of employees.

They accompanied scores of other bills submitted in curtailed sessions attended by only a few lawmakers. Meantime the proposed $396,700,000 state budget and $15,000,000 increase in personal income taxes continued to bring recurrences of protest and support.

The affiliated young Democrats of industrial organizations in backing the program and described as "pure fantasy" the demands of "mushroom" taxpayer groups for a $50,000,000 budget slash.

Frank Parker Stockbridge, chairman of the council on educational standards, said another reduction in state aid for education—proposed by some taxpayer organizations—would "further increase local property taxes." He said the 1939 reduction raised (Continued on Page 14)

One-Man Investigator Says He Has Found Plenty of Ways to Save Money

Washington, Feb. 2 (AP)—A one-man congressional investigation is causing a lot of raised eyebrows in government departments—but it may lower some government costs.

Devoid of fanfare, the novel inquiry is being conducted quietly by chunky, dynamic Rep. Engle (R., Mich.). He says he intends to make some noise about it later.

As a member of a newly-created appropriations sub-committee and labor supply bills, Engle set out several weeks ago to explore personally every division of the agencies involved. Already, he asserted, he has found many places where economies can be effected.

Known in the capitol for his energy and a propensity for machine-gun delivery of speeches crammed with statistics, Engle said that in the last five weeks he covered "every nook and cranny" of the Social Security Board, Civilian Conservation Corps, the National Youth Administration, Public Health Service and office of education.

First Night Alarm and Helsinki, Feb. 2 (AP)—The Soviet war machine sent its highly touted parachute troops floating down upon the Finns on the Karelian Isthmus and brought armored sleds into play in a drive on the village of Summa but the defense forces today still were holding the Mannerheim line guarding the approaches to strategic Viipuri.

Tonight's army communique reported the Russians used "many parachutist patrols" in the fierce isthmus fighting but the invaders were "partly captured and partly annihilated."

Advices from the front said the Russians killed were picked off by Finnish sharpshooters as they dangled from the shroud lines of their parachutes.

Besides repulsing the Russians on the isthmus, the communique said the Finns drove back several Russian attempts to drive over the ice of Lake Ladoga to take Finnish-held islands off the north shore.

It was announced officially that bombing activity yesterday was fairly heavy, with 20 localities, mostly rural, attacked. Two persons were killed and seven wounded, it was said. The Finns charged that civilians frequently were machine-gunned in the raids, which were mostly in south Finland.

The offensive in Karelia, where entrenched Finns were reported holding against the new-style Russian bagged and seven wounded, directly at the seaport of Viipuri, Finland's second largest city, and pivoted on attacks in the vicinity of Summa, 20 miles to the south.

At the same time, a Finnish army communique reported Russian attacks repulsed in the Petas area of the far north, on the Salla front just above the Arctic Circle and on the Lake Ladoga front in the southeast.

For the first time, inhabitants of Helsinki were roused from their beds by a night alarm when the sirens sent them to shelter five minutes after midnight today. But no planes were sighted and the alarm was ended in 20 minutes.

Several buildings were set afire in an air raid at Rovaniemi in the north, however, and bombing attacks occurred at Hanko, Kotka and Turku in the south.

An Associated Press correspondent with the Finnish armies on the Mannerheim line said Red army infantry charged behind the advancing tank-led barrier on the Isthmus front after six hours of artillery preparation.

In this new assault, in which 130 fighting and bombing planes participated, machine-guns and riflemen on the sledges protected the tanks from Finnish grenade throwers.

The fighting lasted through the night but Finnish officers said the direct line was intact and that 15 Soviet batteries had been silenced. Finnish artillery was reported to have scored direct hits on columns of field cannon, tanks, armored cars and infantry before they could reach fighting positions.

The Russian communique early today said "nothing of importance took place at the front" yesterday but reported Soviet fliers had made reconnoitering flights and had "bombed military objectives." Three Finnish airplanes were brought down, it said.

Considerable Numbers
He said Germany probably would use the new bomber in "considerable numbers."

Experts expressed the belief that Germany thus far had not used the new Junkers.

In comparing the gun merits of the new German bombing plane and the new British pursuit ship, a two-seater called the Defiant, the informant said the fighter's tail gun has the advantage because the Junkers lacks such a weapon.

The Defiant's tail-gun is in a turret similar to the power-driven turret on Britain's Wellington bombers. It is regarded as a great advance over the armament of the older fighters like the Spitfire, which have fixed guns.

Besides its tail-gun the Wellington bomber has guns in the nose and midway between the wings and tail. Moreover, airmen said, it has twice the 1,300-mile range reported for the new Junkers, but possibly less speed than the Junkers' maximum of 315 miles an hour.

Atrocities Are Listed Polish Government in Exile Is Piecing Together Story Which It Says Tells History's Most Cruel Treatment

Paris, Feb. 2 (AP)—The Polish government in exile is piecing together a story of atrocities in the German-occupied portion of Poland which it says rival or surpass the most barbarous treatment of a conquered people in history.

In its series of "white papers," which are being issued periodically and are to be assembled in a book later, the Polish government describes the land that Germany seized as one of hunger, stark fear, wrecked churches and hospitals, and executions. It says deportations of the populace are conducted with methodical brutality. A similar paper was issued last night by the Polish envoys to Italy and the Vatican.

Tales of atrocities and suffering also are reported from that portion of Poland which fell to Soviet Russia, but the papers dealt mostly with the part held by Germany.

The Poles declare the papers contain only information which has been carefully investigated and verified, including an estimate that the Germans have executed 18,000 Poles of all classes.

Kaiser Would Have Allies And Germany Make Peace, Then Give Aid to Finland

The man who led Germany into a world war in 1914—Kaiser Wilhelm—thinks Germany and the allies should declare peace immediately, then join Finland to "rid the world of Bolshevism."

The former ruler, now in exile at Doorn, Holland, gave these sentiments in a letter mailed January 16 to Poulton Bigelow of Malden-on-Hudson, his American biographer, the Associated Press reports.

Bigelow, making public the German's remarks, quoted him as saying: "The magnificent stand of the Finns has smashed the nimbus of Bolshevism and set people thinking—with the result that the wish for peace is gaining ground."

"The belligerents should stop fighting and join their forces to help the Finns. They should fight in one line to rid the world and civilization of Bolshevism."

Wilhelm, an exile since 1918, celebrated his 81st birthday Saturday. Bigelow has arranged to leave tomorrow for Italy to see Premier Mussolini and, he hopes, Wilhelm also.

England Expecting Attacks in Spring By Nazi Bombers

Royal Air Force Is Ready to Reply in Kind if Germans Begin Raids;
Has New Planes

London, Feb. 2 (AP)—The royal air force is prepared to reply in kind to large scale German bombing of Great Britain expected in the spring, authoritative sources asserted today.

Speedy fighting planes with machineguns in the tails to permit fire in any direction were described as Britain's means of meeting the anticipated attack by a new German bomber built for speedy performance at high altitudes.

"There is evidence the Germans are pressing construction of fast, long range bombers," an aviation source said. He described the new type as a twin-motored Junkers bomber, JU-88, carrying a crew of three or four and three guns, one in the nose and two in the fuselage.

"With this weapon in his hands, it seems unlikely the enemy will capitulate without attempting a desperate aerial attack on Britain's vital targets," the source declared.

He said Germany probably would use the new bomber in "considerable numbers."

Experts expressed the belief that Germany thus far had not used the new Junkers.

In comparing the gun merits of the new German bombing plane and the new British pursuit ship, a two-seater called the Defiant, the informant said the fighter's tail gun has the advantage because the Junkers lacks such a weapon.

Rumanians Reported as Having Made Concessions to Germany; Alliance Is Held Futile

Affects British
German Plan Would Place
British Interests in Tough
Spot

Belgrade, Feb. 2 (AP)—German pressure on Rumania to obtain acceptance of a sweeping plan to make her industries, petroleum production and agriculture adjuncts of the Reich's economic structure was reported by informed persons today as the meeting of the Balkan Entente opened here.

Rumania, the informants said, already has made some concessions to Germany regarding the plan but is looking to her partners in the entente—Turkey, Greece, Yugoslavia—to support her in a policy of economic neutrality which would enable her to resist encroachments upon which might involve her in war.

Under Germany's program, it was said, Rumanian industry would be synchronized with that of the Reich and become virtually a part of Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering's four-year plan for self-sufficiency.

Germany would liquidate a large debt to Rumania by wholesale shipments of munitions and other manufactures.

Rumanian industry would discontinue manufactures duplicating Germany's and concentrate on products Germany could use.

Rumania would keep a steady stream of oil, wheat and timber moving to the Reich—as much as could be transported.

German technicians would be sent to Rumania to improve production and accelerate shipments.

Would "Freeze" British
Briefly, the reported plan virtually would freeze out Britain and France from Rumania and involve a written or implied German guarantee of Rumania's frontiers.

Rumania's main fear of this program was said to be that by becoming Germany's economic ally she would be inviting attack by Britain and France and possibly become the war's main battlefield.

Conversely, Rumania was said equally to fear a German thrust should she balk at Germany's determination to get needed supplies and to have scant confidence in British-French guarantees of help because of her distance from them and Poland's fate.

Thus she wants to follow a middle course with her entente partners.

The main argument of Rumanian Foreign Minister Grigore Gafencu is that the situation of the other entente nations is analogous to Rumania's and greater safety for all lies in close collaboration and economic as well as political neutrality.

While Yugoslavia apparently is disposed to go along with such a policy, Greece and Turkey are farther from Germany and, more closely tied with the allies, would face difficulties in upsetting trade gains they have made with the allies since the outbreak of war.

Turkey Might Fight
On the other hand, Turkey is regarded as the only entente that (Continued on Page 13)

Washington, Feb. 2 (AP)—Because any foreign spy can send trans-Atlantic message with a radio built from dime-store parts, Uncle Sam is increasing his precautions against use of the air for espionage.

In response to an appeal by Chairman James Lawrence Fly of the communications commission, the Senate appropriations committee recommended today that the FCC appropriation be boosted by $40,000 to build a new "monitor" station near Anchorage, Alaska, as a silent detective of the air waves.

"There is extreme difficulty in avoiding espionage work by the use of high-frequencies," Fly told the committee in explaining why the FCC maintained listening stations to check up on the activities of amateur and other operators.

The Kingston Municipal Auditorium, scene of the 21st annual Knights of Columbus charity ball to be held this evening, is ready for the big crowd that is expected to be present at this outstanding social event, the entire proceeds of which is expended for non-sectarian charity.

Florian P. Wingert and William J. Dwyer, chairmen of the decoration committee, have spent much time to revamp the interior of the huge building, and to provide a setting completely different from last year which invoked so many favorable comments.

The stage will again present a colorful appearance and will form a suitable background for the presentation of Teddy Powell and his orchestra which is one of the high-lights of the evening. Powell and his group of fifteen musicians, plus the song stylists, Ruth Gaylor and Jimmy Blair, will play for the concert, entertainment and dancing. Alternating with him during the dancing part of the program will be Bob Steuding and his orchestra, Ulster county's outstanding rhythm makers.

The doors of the auditorium will open at 7:30, with concert at 8:30, entertainment at 9, and general dancing at 10:15.

Actual Employment

Pittsburgh, Feb. 2 (AP)—Harry Paisley's one-man strike at Clark Brothers Chewing Gum Company plan is ended and 150 employees are back at work but his status is still in doubt.

"We are paying him until we can get him a job," said Company President A. F. Clark. This arrangement was worked out with state and federal labor mediators and the AFL Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Stablemen and Helpers.

Paisley was discharged a week ago with discontinuance of his truck driving job under a new company distribution system. He established a picket line at the plant and fellow workers, members of another union, refused to cross.

Eight alternates-at-large also will be selected by the committee. The remaining 85 of New York's 93 delegates will be elected at the April 2 primary. Petitions for these posts must be filed by February 27.

Store Alterations Are Being Made

Work of carrying out the proposed extensive changes in the store at 330 Wall street, formerly occupied by the A. & P. Co., to prepare it for occupancy by Nugent's, got under way Thursday. The work is being done by Peter C. Osterhout & Son, contractors. David Zucker, manager of Nugent's Kingston store, for some time past located at 31 North Front street, said this morning that they hoped to have the new store ready for occupancy by March 1. "It will be a newer, bigger and better store in every sense of the word," Mr. Zucker said. A much larger stock will be carried in the new location, with complete lines of everything in women's wear.

The front of the new store will be entirely changed and, according to Mr. Zucker, will be different from anything of the kind in this section. In addition to the display front which will be installed, the entire front of the building will be covered with tile to the roof.

The interior of the store will be completely changed and renovated, with new floors, new lighting system and, of course, new wall cases and fixtures to accommodate the new line of business. Everything, it is stated, will be of the latest and most modern design, while the greatly increased space will not only give added business facilities but increased convenience for patrons.

Nugent's signed a lease for the Wall street store early in January through Attorney Joseph Forman, acting for the J. Harold Realty Corp., as noted in The Freeman at the time. Later it also was announced that Nugent's had extended their lease on the present location. Mr. Zucker was unable to say what disposition would be made of the present store when Nugent's move into their new Wall street place of business.

Good Postal Twine Made From Cotton

Uncle Sam as postal clerk uses carloads of twine each year for tying bundles of sorted mail. He has been using jute twine—for economy and because the cotton twine available has not had the combination of qualities most desirable for a postal twine.

For tying bundles of letters twine should be strong enough to hold despite rough usage. It should not be so fine that it cuts the hands of the clerks when they tie the bundles and break the cord. The twine must not stretch enough to allow the bundles to loosen and the letters to scatter under rough handling.

The United States department of agriculture reports a new cotton twine developed that has proved satisfactory in preliminary tests in the actual handling of mail. Treatment of the twine with a sizing mixture containing a small amount of pine tar oil (to keep down mildew) and drying under tension removes most of the stretch and improves the strength. The twine breaks well after tying, but holds the bundle safe in the pouch.

Moreover, the new cotton twine runs about 1,350 yards to the pound, as compared with about 850 yards to the pound of jute twine—so a slightly higher price for cotton twine would be offset by the increased yardage. In this work the department had the co-operation of a large twine manufacturer.

The post office advertised for several carloads of the new cotton twine, but the twine manufacturers were booked so far ahead on orders that they could not make deliveries within the required time and could not, therefore, submit bids.

U. S. Families on Relief Buy 'Protective' Foods

What do families on relief actually buy with blue stamps issued free as a practical method for distributing food of which there is a surplus supply? What foods do they choose when they have opportunity to select as they please from a limited list of surplus foods?

It is too early to draw general conclusions, says Milo Perkins, in charge of the United States department of agriculture food-stamp program. But for a six-week period the stamp holders spent a little more than 80 per cent of their blue stamps for "protective" foods and a little less than 20 per cent for flour, corn meal, rice and beans. Butter, eggs, and fresh fruits and vegetables have protective values.

For this period the stamp plan was effective in five cities. There were minor differences in administrative methods to discover which variations of the basic plan seemed to work best. In general, orange-colored stamps, which could be used to buy any foods, and half as many blue stamps given free could be spent only for foods on the official surplus list. At that time the surplus list included butter, eggs, oranges, grapefruit, peaches, pears, cabbage, peas, tomatoes, onions, dried prunes, white flour, graham flour, corn meal, rice, and dried beans. Nutritionists do not class the last five items as "protective" foods.

One ton of dried raisins is equivalent to four tons of fresh grapes.

Tavern Serves Model Village of Greendale

MILWAUKEE, Wis.—Greendale, the federal government's model village on the outskirts of Milwaukee, has a model tavern, too.

It encourages eating instead of drinking. There are no blinds or screens on windows and doors to conceal those inside taking a "nip"; there are no special "ladies" or "family" entrances.

Fred Staub has obtained the right to operate the tavern on a sub-lease from the Greendale association, which holds a general lease on all business property in the village. He plans to invite the Greendale women's organizations to hold their meetings in his place.

The tavern consists of a large room built in the style of an old English inn. A canopied terrace adjoins the tavern.

Blind Carpenter's Building

Robert L. Grove Sr. of Pittsburgh, Pa., is building a three-room addition to his house "by feel." Grove, a carpenter for 45 years, has been virtually blind for six years. Grove decided to build the annex because he couldn't stand idleness. He built the main dwelling of four rooms in 1929. Grove's blindness does not appear to handicap him greatly. Already he has made excavations, laid foundations, set in the sills and the building has begun to take form. The blind carpenter uses a T-square or a strip of lumber to guide him while sawing lumber, but driving nails is his biggest problem. He holds the nail until the hammer-head begins to pinch his thumb and forefinger, then lets go and sinks the nail with one or two more strokes.

Price Reductions Marked Business News Thursday

Price reductions marked the news Thursday. General Electric and Westinghouse announced reduced prices on electric refrigerators, following a similar announcement by Nash-Kelvinator a few weeks ago. Pressure is being brought on steel firms for lower pig iron prices in line with concessions made to Ford Motor Co. by U. S. Steel, which might result in lower prices further along the line. Leading producers cut the price of copper 1½¢, to 11½¢, a point on the other hand Goodrich made the first move toward a general increase in the price of automobile tires. On the most popular passenger car tire the consumer increase is about $1.

Barron's business index of physical volume of business again showed a drop for the week ending January 27, falling to 88.8 from 89.1 in the previous week. The index now is off five points from the December high.

With increased coal shipments, due to the cold wave, car loadings last week made a more than seasonal gain, despite falling oil in other shipments. Total was 649,488 cars, an increase of 3,666.

Standard Oil of New Jersey has acquired the right for the production of a synthetic rubber, from the German I. G. Farben industries. It has been made in Germany for some time, but both German interests and American oil companies have important basic patents on the process. Standard probably will license American tire or chemical companies to produce the rubber. Buna rubber resists oil and gasoline and has long-wearing qualities.

The 1939 net of Texas Corp. is estimated at around $3 a share, compared with $2.13 a share in 1938. Shell Union Oil has indicated net of around 77 cents a common share for 1939, vs. 72 cents a share in 1938.

With private award ration best since October, engineering construction awards last week were six per cent above the 1939 week. Total was $62,942,000.

Commonwealth & Southern reports 1939 net of $13,413,636, or 13 cents a common share, vs. $10,204,848, or three cents a share in 1938.

More than a billion dollars of utility refinancing and new money operations are being held up pending decisions by the Securities and Exchange Commission.

Stock averages again edged slightly downward Thursday, with trading down to 460,000 shares. Industrials in the Dow-Jones list were off 10 point, to 145.23; utilities declined .09, to 24.61. Rails were up slightly, .02, to 30.58. Brokers reported little or no interest except in a few lower priced stocks.

The commodity index dropped .34 point Thursday as prices generally evinced a lower trend. Wheat fluctuated nervously and closed off ¼ to ½ cent a bushel. Weakness in raws depressed domestic sugar futures. Silk futures advanced as much as 13 cents in early trading but profit-taking eliminated the gain. Wool, hides and cocoa made small gains. Cotton rallied in a late flurry of trade covering and the list closed with gains of one to 15 points.

As the result of a $40,000 prize selling contest among Packard salesmen, retail deliveries of new Packard cars are reported to be running 75 per cent ahead of last year this time. Deliveries are expected to reach new highs for February.

Lawrence Portland Cement Co. turned a loss of $126,963 in 1938 into a net profit of $117,894, or $1.57 a share in 1939.

Can't Accept Service

Baltimore, Feb. 2 (AP)—Dr. Joseph E. Moore, physician treating Al Capone, said today the former gang leader was in no condition to accept service in a government income tax suit against him.

Australia, Argentina, Brazil, Venezuela and Mexico have established federal areas patterned after the District of Columbia.

City Supplies Room To Calm Whittlers

Meeting Place of 'Gentlemen Over 50' Protected.

FORTALES, N. M. — Portales' "spit and whistle club" of "gentlemen over 50," whose meeting place on the north side of the square is protected by a sign reading, "If You Are Under 50 Years of Age, Don't Sit Here," has moved inside for the winter.

But for awhile it looked as if cold winds, unwelcome to aging joints and bald heads, might break up the gathering which spent many summer hours "jawing" under the shade trees where a sign proclaims, "No Preaching Allowed." The old-timer couldn't move around to the sunny south side of the square because of a new lawn planted there, so they appointed a committee to ask the city council to provide them with a building for winter meetings.

The council foresaw budget difficulties and balked, but the committee argued that the city provided playgrounds for children, parks for youth and roads for the city's drivers, and therefore ought to provide a place for the "spit and whistle" club to meet during the winter. The committee won.

Now the "gentlemen over 50"—retired cattlemen, merchants and pioneers of the district—rent a city building and hold their "confabs" in the same untroubled comfort they enjoyed in the summer.

Weather Data Punched on Cards Aid in Forecasting

WASHINGTON.—More than 10,000,000 observations on the weather made at 200 airports throughout the country during the past five years are being punched on cards, passed through sorting machines, and filed for reference at the United States weather bureau.

The cards record all the details of temperature, wind direction, barometric pressure, wind velocity, visibility and such factors as fog, smoke, rain, snow and dust.

By putting a batch of them from Dallas, Des Moines, New York, San Francisco or any other point in the sorting machine, a weather scientist will be able to find within a short time the range of temperature or any other element of the weather for the past five years at any point.

WPA "white-collar" workers at New Orleans, where the project is being carried on, are turning out these cards at the rate of 30,000 per day. They are using 10 tabulating machines to sort them and work out the curves of weather variations on master charts.

With these, weather men will be able to make their forecasts more accurately than ever before, knowing that a combination of certain conditions probably will produce rain, snow, sleet or fog tomorrow.

Drill Touches Roman Fossils of 18,000 B. C.

ROME.—Italian self-sufficiency experts were surprised when the drill of an oil well erected on the site of the Circus Maximus, after reaching the 1,000-foot level suddenly plunged into a muddy river bed along which the Tiber river flowed more than 20,000 years ago.

The American oil drilling equipment, a feature of the Italian self-sufficiency exposition, had inadvertently made this year's most important archaeological discovery.

Samples of the river clay reveal fossils that were deposited by the Tiber 18 centuries before it shifted to its present course and, according to legend, bore Romulus and Remus, the mythical founders of Rome, to safety on its muddy waters.

The discovery makes the ruins of Augustus Caesar's ancient sports stadium, which stand in venerable contrast to the modern steel framework of the oil derrick, actually young by comparison.

The oil derrick was erected on the grounds of a national self-sufficiency fair as an attraction to show visitors how oil is discovered.

Early Indian Burial Is Revealed in California

PORTERVILLE, CALIF.—The crumbling skeleton of a long dead Indian was found by workmen laying a pipe line for the Terra Bella irrigation district.

The aborigine had been buried in a sitting position. A piece of abalone shell, probably a valued ornament, was found with the skull and leg bones. The teeth in the skull were still in fairly good condition.

Many Ancient Autos On Connecticut Roads

HARTFORD, CONN.—A state motor vehicles department survey showed that 18.5 per cent of the 503,618 automobiles registered in Connecticut during 1939 antedated 1930.

The oldest were two 1904 model Fords and a 1906 Locomobile. Others, whose names were familiar a quarter-century ago, included Chandler, Davis, Flint, Jordan, Kissel-Carr, Marquette, Moon, Velie, Westcott, Windsor, Haynes, Jewett, Metz, Rambler, Pope-Hartford, Columbia, Toledo, Thomas and other outmoded and discontinued cars.

Hauptmann Boy Awarded $23,500

New York, Feb. 2 (AP)—The six-year-old son of Bruno Richard Hauptmann, executed kidnaper of the Lindbergh baby, has been awarded $23,500 damages against Frank Moser, a cartoonist, for allegedly permanent leg injuries suffered when he was struck by Moser's car.

The child, Manfred Hauptmann, was hurt while playing in front of his Bronx home May 5, 1938. His mother, who sued for $100,000, was awarded $2,000 by a jury yesterday.

Moser's attorney called the award excessive and asked that it be set aside. Justice William F. Love reserved decision.

Mrs. Hauptmann, whose husband was electrocuted in 1936, charged Moser with negligence. The cartoonist's counsel said the accident was unavoidable.

The verdict was returned in the Bronx county courthouse where Hauptmann first was arraigned on charges of kidnaping the infant son of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh.

Last year fire loss in this country ran to nearly a million dollars a day—the grand total was around $313,000,000. This is a big country and it can carry tremendous debts and losses without being bogged down. But three hundred million dollars is no paltry sum even here, when you think of the lives, jobs and intangible loss involved, for which no insurance can compensate.

Three hundred million dollars would pay a substantial share of our proposed record-breaking naval building program. It would pay for thousands of the costly airplanes now needed by the army. To make a more peaceful comparison, it would build 50,000 homes costing $6,000 each. Or it would build fine hospitals to care for countless thousands of sick people, and ameliorate ghastly suffering.

Last, but not least, is fire's destruction of life. According to news reports, Finland lost only 258 civilian lives by air raids in the first six weeks of its war with Russia, whereas the United States loses over 10,000 lives by the ravages of fire alone in an average year, or nearly 200 a week.

Fire loss in this city during 1939, according to the annual report of the fire chief, was $28,375.05, a decrease of $64,463.30 from the 1938 loss of $92,850.35.

There were two tragic deaths and several persons suffered burns during the year.

The local fire department responded to 350 fire calls in the city, which was an increase of 32 over the preceding year.

Although this nation is blessed with peace, it suffers war ravages from an enemy it can control. It's time to go to war against fire.

CENSORED WEATHER

The recent cold spell which brought such suffering to various parts of this country seems to have been almost world-wide in the northern hemisphere. It was probably as severe in Canada as in the corresponding areas of Europe. But hardly anywhere outside of the United States was there any publicity for this Jack Frost masterpiece.

The same military censorship that prevents the United States from getting weather news from Canada was clamped down on the British Isles. Only at the end of January has it been revealed that the winter there broke a record of 46 years for coldness and suffering. Hundreds of people died from the blizzards. There was also great suffering in France, and the troops in the trenches had a hard time keeping warm in their frozen dugouts. It must have been even worse in Germany, although no information was forthcoming from that country. A little news leaked out regarding the hardship caused by the bitter weather in northern Russia, especially in Moscow, and on the Finnish battle front.

Only in one country was there full publicity for this epochal spell of weather. That was in Finland. The Finns could stand it, and weeks of 20 to 50 degrees below zero played into their hands.

But did any country or army gain anything by trying to conceal its weather from hostile neighbors? Probably not. The other fellows, too, knew how cold it was.

WE CAN'T HURRY HISTORY

"Patience, lovely virtue," said Charlie Chan. So, too, in different words, says John Dewey, venerable American educator, philosopher and "liberal" or "radical", according to your point of view.

"I should say that my philosophy of life is based essentially on the single word 'patience,'" Dewey told a New York Times reporter who sought him recently on his eightieth birthday. "Perhaps it is my age that has made me realize that history is a long, slow process in which there are advances and regressions, that all development must be gradual. Russia has shown that the days of revolution with resulting good are over."

It would be reassuring to hold such a view of history. Most of us feel that history has been moving so fast in the last few years that things in general are badly out of control. Retrogression has been all too apparent in international affairs, trade, peace and so on, and people have begun to despair of civilization's survival or ability ever to advance again. Patience and a nice long view ahead may quiet those fears and put us in a better state of mind to get the next advance started.

JAPAN STEWS

Japan is in a heap of trouble right now, with nearly everything getting worse. Its Chinese campaign is stalled by growing resistance. Its military supplies, heretofore obtained mainly from America, may be cut off at any time. Its people are impoverished and fed up on war, and there are serious economic and political troubles.

Japan's main trouble comes from her army, a Samurai hold-over which links nobility and prestige with brutal conquest. It is a law to itself, making war at its own sweet will and ignoring parliament. The navy is more liberal and modern. The political government doesn't really govern, so that its foreign negotiations and agreements are ineffective.

In such a situation Japan might run amuck. Nobody can tell when her masters will lead the country into some new, crazy adventure.

Japan needs peace, business recovery and a restoration of friendly relations with America and Great Britain. But the first essential, to the Japanese mind, is to "save face." Japan can't endure humiliation.

The situation seems to call for a deft "formula" for Japanese-American relations. Maybe, after the Jap war-makers have been stewing in their own juice for a reasonable length of time, a kindly Uncle Sam can suggest something.

Business enterprisers are losing the spirit of adventure. We need a new brood of J. Rufus Wallingfords coming around and asking for a million dollars to play with.

What America needs in this hour of crisis is more no-men.

WHY WE GET BLUE AND DISCOURAGED

A man of thirty-five after doing excellent work at one branch of his organization was notified that he was being transferred to a larger branch with an increase of salary. To make sure that everything would be in the best of order for the man taking over his present situation, he worked day and night, regardless of any irregularity of eating or sleeping. As the day approached he found himself worrying about his fitness for the promotion. He became blue and discouraged and was about to turn down the promotion. In desperation, he consulted his physician.

The physician found that there was nothing abnormal except a slight yellowishness of the skin. He learned from the patient that he had been working hard to get things in order, had been irregular in his meals, eating much pastry at a neighboring restaurant as he hadn't time to go home for lunch or dinner. He was afraid the new position would be too much for him.

The physician explained that keeping his mind tensed kept his body tensed and interfered with the proper working of stomach, liver, gall bladder and intestinal movement or action, and that bile, instead of flowing freely into the intestine, was backing up into the stomach and into the blood. Also, the gall bladder was not emptying its thick bile of bile. Accordingly, what is known as the dye test was made and it was found that the liver was not filtering its poisons out promptly and that the gall bladder took about as long to empty (after a fat meal) as it should had it been in normal condition.

Some bending exercises, the use of bile, a course of Epsom salts, an enema every week, together with four small meals daily, restored the liver to normal which, together with a more rapid emptying of the gall bladder, removed the patient's dread and fear. He entered into his new work with enthusiasm.

Do not blame your blueiness, your lack of courage, your fear of work, upon any mental overwork or disturbance. Very often if you get your liver and gall bladder working properly, these symptoms will disappear.

BABSON ON BUSINESS

A Pitiful Record
Babson Scores President's Pay-As-You-Go Defense Taxes

Babson Park, Mass., Feb. 2.—It is going full blast again! The familiar seeds of New Year economy, budget-balancing, pay-as-you-go talk are being sown. As usual, the June harvest will be a big deficit, no real economies, another attempt to persecute business. This year's economy talk makes me sadder than ever. The sheer hypocrisy, the brazen effrontery on budgetary and fiscal matters shocks me. How sly it is to hoodwink the public on finances—and it has been done shamelessly for eight years.

The New Deal rode into Washington on an economy platform. "I ask you very simply to assign to me the task of reducing the annual operating expenses of your government..." It is my pledge and promise that rigid government economy shall be enforced by a stern and unremitting government policy of living within our income... Thus spoke Candidate Roosevelt in 1932. No promises could have been more completely shattered than these. President Roosevelt promptly doubled spending. As his eighth consecutive budget deficit went to congress last month, his "rigid economies" had succeeded in doubling the nation's debt.

Economy Hopes Fade

Every January there has been much talk of economy, drastic paring down of expenses, cutting appropriations to the bone. Each January there is talk behind the scenes about the need for new taxes. Then late each session a huge deficiency bill is railroaded through. Late each session heat is put on the tax committee to prevent any increase in taxes except on big corporations and millionaires. Each year the national debt gets bigger. Each year there is less and less hope the budget will ever be balanced, that "rigid economy" can ever be practiced in public places.

Worst of all, however, is 1940. This is an election year. No one ever expects congress to be economy-minded in an election year. Congress was economy-minded last year, but the administration was tooth and nail against economy. Now, what does the Administration do? The President, knowing congress will oppose direct economy and will fight new taxes, harps on economy, cries about the need to put defense on a pay-as-you-go basis, brings out the familiar—but still effective—bromides about balancing the budget.

Why the Sudden Concern?

It is not necessary to discuss this demand of the President for economy. Most everybody sees through that. But this pay-as-you-go defense is another matter. (A recent Gallup Poll showed that 58 per cent of the voters favored such a policy). It seems ridiculous to me that the voters should suddenly become concerned about saddling the cost of a billion-dollar defense program on future generations when they have cheerfully allowed the administration to borrow untold billions to squander on plowing up cotton, raking leaves, and destroying little pigs.

The point that bothers me is that the administration, if backed by popular approval, may try to force new taxes on congress this year. Nearly five hundred congressmen must be re-elected this year. Few of them will vote for the right kind of a tax in election year. They will not hand their opponents a ready-made, bang-up, vote-getting issue on a silver platter. Under great pressure (which I am not forecasting will be brought to bear) they might well enact a new tax but it will be the wrong kind of a tax—another tax to discourage new employers and to force existing employers out of business.

Good Taxes and Bad Taxes

The right kind of a tax would encourage everyone to work harder, to produce more, to earn more. Such a tax means a broadening of the income tax base. Every voter would then know that when he cast his ballot for a spendthrift congressman his vote would hit his own pocketbook—not just Henry Ford's. Putting this kind of a tax bill through in 1940, however, would be politically impossible. Instead, the discussion is centering around a "super-tax" on those who already pay income taxes. Ten to fifteen per cent is the figure talked about. How many new projects will this super-tax squelch? How many expansion plans will it nip in the bud?

This "super-tax" would raise havoc with our current upswing. Big income taxes have hurt the country and the unemployed more than they have ever helped them. Here is an interesting tabulation:

Year	National Income	Peak Tax Rate
1921	$58,200,000,000	73
1922	61,100,000,000	58
1923	69,300,000,000	58
1924	71,900,000,000	46
1925	76,500,000,000	25
1939	70,000,000,000	79

Is it merely a coincidence that national income (which after all is mainly workers' income) soared from 1921 to 1925, while the peak tax dropped from 73 to 25 per cent?

Risks Too Great

Today's top rate is back to 79 per cent. And there are state and inheritance taxes to boot! Maybe that is why national income can't back through the $70,000,000,000 figure, why government receipts are far below government expenditures. In effect, the government's tax policies mean that a wealthy business man can no longer afford to take business chances. A $200,000 loss this year, for instance, can be recovered only after four successive years of $200,000 profits! Voters must learn that the cards are not only stacked against the big business man but also against the jobless workers whom he might employ. Let us be honest and recognize the facts!

Box-Score Method of Defense Against Criticism Not At All New Deal Strategy

By DAVID LAWRENCE

(Copyright, 1940)

Washington, Feb. 2.—The box-score method of defense against criticism used by J. Warren Madden, chairman of the National Labor Relations Board, is not at all in conformity with good New Deal strategy as manifested in controversies heretofore.

Thus, Mr. Madden contends that because the labor board has been upheld in 72 per cent of its cases before the courts, this necessarily implies that this has been an excellent administration of the law. But the same sort of argument was totally ignored by the President just three years ago this week when he assailed the Supreme Court. Up to that time there had been approximately 24,000 statutes passed by Congress from the beginning of the republic and yet less than 60 had been declared unconstitutional by the Supreme Court.

The relatively insignificant number of instances where the court had overruled Congress was ignored and the New Deal centered its attention on three or four laws which it regarded as such major importance as to demand that the judges be relegated to a minority by the device of packing the majority with extra judges.

If the merits of public questions or their effect on the citizen were to be measured by numerical standards in court cases, there would be other agencies of the government equally unmineral of private rights which have as good, if not better, records. The power of review of decisions of executive departments and agencies is limited and if the New Dealers have their way there will be virtually no more review by the courts of the work of the independent commissions.

There are many thousands of employers who did not dare to avail themselves of recourse to the courts either because of expense or fear of reprisals, whereas, the few who did take their cases under the Wagner labor law to the courts found themselves, in many instances, defeated by a judiciary with pronounced New Deal tendencies.

Thus more than half of the federal judges now on the bench were appointed under the present administration. Now that a majority of the Supreme Court justices are New Deal appointees, it would not be surprising if the box score of the labor board went up still further.

What is important in any impartial examination of the record of the labor board in the courts is how far-reaching are the issues decided. In one case alone the labor board has been held to have disregarded the rules of evidence and to have substituted "surmise" and "guess" for "proof." How many other courts took the time and trouble to examine the record minutely to see whether the same thing had happened? The New Dealers insist the courts must not disturb "findings of fact" by the board itself, and yet trial examinations read into the records their own interpretation of the issues. In one case alone the labor board has been held to have disregarded the rules of evidence and to have substituted "surmise" and "guess" for "proof." How many other courts took the time and trouble to examine the record minutely to see whether the same thing had happened? The New Dealers insist the courts must not disturb "findings of fact" by the board itself, and yet trial examinations read into the records their own interpretation of the issues.

In recent months the courts have shown a tendency to overrule the labor board more than they did a year or so ago, but even this trend is meaningless because it is the issue in each case that is important and not the total number of cases. It doesn't take but one decision to deprive a whole citizenry of a fundamental right. Thus, the board has ruled that freedom of speech between employer and employee is a "qualified right." If this should be upheld by the courts, it would mean far more to the labor board in its power of coercion over employer-employee relations than all the other victories it has won in the courts put together.

Statistical summaries will not erase from the public mind the growing impression that the labor board has lost prestige with the country because it has behaved as a crusading institution rather than a judicial tribunal. The public speeches by the members of the board are filled with class prejudice. Too often in sizing up employer attitudes, the board has ruled that public statements are contributory evidence to a state of mind of an employer toward employees. So also may it be inferred that members of the labor board reveal their conscious or unconscious bias in the matter of employer-employee relations by their public utterances.

Mr. Madden's statement that the trouble with the labor board is somebody else—namely the National Association of Manufacturers—was a good excuse in 1935 and 1936, but it does not explain away the criticism being made in 1940 by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, nor does it answer the many sensational disclosures of incompetence and irregularity among subordinate personnel revealed by the special House committee investigating the labor board. Every new law and board makes its errors, but these can be forgiven if the record shows a fundamental obedience to the rules of fairness and the presence of a judicial temperament. Unfavorable Seasons Are Test Years

By the Master Gardener

Most anyone can have moderate success with a garden during a favorable season when weather conditions are such that a good seedbed can be made early in the season, seed can be planted at the proper time, and moisture conditions are good for the growing plants.

But an unfavorable season (very late or excessively dry) tests the skill of the gardener. It is then that the properly prepared seed-bed, rich in food material, and of high water holding capacity, produces a garden that stands out prominently among its less fortunate neighbors.

Then it is that reserve food supplies, balanced and complete, help plants to overcome the handicaps these unfavorable conditions have brought about, and make the best possible showing for the balance of the season.

So don't take any chances this year when you prepare the soil for your new perennial plantings, when you give your old perennial beds their initial spring care, when you prepare seedbeds for vegetables and annual flowers, and when you give small fruits, shrubs, and ornamental and fruit trees the care that they require in spring. Your lawn too should not be forgotten.

Feed everything you grow with a complete, balanced plant food, and regardless of the vagaries of the weather, you will be assured of at least moderately favorable results from your gardening. Plant food is not a cure-all, nor will it perform miracles, but it does insure steady, vigorous growth once favorable conditions become favorable for plant development.

Early application of plant food has been found especially beneficial. Then the plant food is right there in solution, available to the plants just as soon as they start growth in the spring. And applied to the lawn before the grass makes any top growth, you do not have the labor of wetting the lawn food down, because the late snows and early spring rains take care of this part of the task for you.

BLOOD RUNS COLD

By Ann Demarest

YESTERDAY: Norton tries going down the drain pipe and it crashes to the ground. Miss Wells asks permission to go to the movies, but is treated to the apartment of a man named Perry.

Chapter 16

Charles Whitefield

FORTUNATELY for me someone knocked at the door. The Sergeant crossed the room and admitted a man I hadn't seen before. As he came in he said gravely, "Mr. Kimball tells me I'm wanted by the police."

"What's your name?" The Sergeant regarded him coldly.

The man drew off his heavy gloves and rubbed his hands together briskly. "It's damn cold out," he said easily. Then, looking at the Sergeant, he said, "The name is Charles Whitefield. I live in the third floor front apartment." There was a faint smile at the corners of his mouth. "I'm an artist, thirty-three years old and," he added proudly, "I'm not married, thank Heaven."

His smile was obvious now and his tone held too much levity for the Sergeant to digest in comfort. I was finding Mr. Whitefield interesting. He was a short, thin fellow in a blue chinchilla overcoat that covered him from neck to heels. Except for the coat, there wasn't anything to distinguish him from a hundred other men.

"What do you know about this?" the Sergeant asked.

Charles Whitefield waved a newspaper under the Sergeant's nose and said, "Only the little that the papers had to offer, but enough to learn that you must be the Sergeant Long of the Homicide Squad."

He bowed politely, but the Sergeant, seeing the twinkle in his eye, flushed. Personally I found the man more refreshing than the other inmates, but the Sergeant looked at him with an accusing eye.

"Where were you last night?" he asked.

And then I wondered if I were mistaken in thinking that behind Mr. Whitefield's nonchalant look there was a warning, but he answered without hesitation, "In my apartment."

"All evening?"

"Right. I got in about seven and didn't stir out again until this morning." He bent down to brush the snow from his shoes.

"Did you hear anything unusual during the evening, or particularly between eleven and one?"

The man seemed suddenly bored with the questioning. "No," he said and lighted a cigarette, looking at the Sergeant with mild interest.

The Sergeant shot out the next question, "Who was with you?"

If the artist hesitated, it was only for an instant. "A girl."

"Who?"

He smiled. "I prefer not to say. A nice girl, though. She didn't murder anyone."

"I'm the one to decide that."

"By this time I had scant sympathy for the Sergeant. He got very little out of people because he made them angry right away. Mr. Whitefield faced him now with a stubborn look, apparently determined to say nothing."

With an irritated gesture Sergeant Long walked to the window, gnawing on his cigar. Dirck fumbled in his pockets for his cigarettes, lighted one and said in a casual voice, "I can understand how you feel about giving the lady's name, but since she obviously had nothing to do with the murder, you would be doing no harm in telling it. Besides, we've accounted fairly well for the comings and goings of everyone in the house and it might be some help to the Sergeant." He leaned forward earnestly. "You see, she might have seen someone and we could do a little verifying of time."

Whistling in the Dark?

THE Sergeant turned away from the window. "What time did she leave your apartment?"

The artist answered him sullenly. "I really forget, possibly a little after midnight."

"It must have been later than that," Dirck said quietly. "Her room-mate got home at twenty past twelve and she hadn't come in yet."

Charles Whitefield's jaw tensed and he looked at Dirck swiftly. For a minute I didn't quite grasp what he meant, and I think the Sergeant was dumbfounded, too. Then it dawned on me that Adrienne Wells had been up in his apartment. I wondered how Dirck knew about it, or whether he was whistling in the dark.

"I guess she did leave a little later," Whitefield admitted. "You see, I was giving her a drawing lesson and the time passed very quickly."

"Have you been seeing much of Miss Wells?" the Sergeant inquired.

"Oh, a couple of evenings a week," he said carelessly.

"And did you know Joan Kent?"

He shook his head. "Only by sight."

"And you have no information you can give me about last night?"

The man shook his head, and the Sergeant seemed to lose interest. He told him he could go, but not to leave the house without permission.

After Mr. Whitefield left the Sergeant turned to Dirck furiously. "You didn't tell me she was up there."

"I didn't know for sure," Dirck replied. "It was just a hunch."

"Wait until I get hold of that young lady," the Sergeant said with a grim smile. "Out dancing, was she?"

Then I remembered the person who was crouching on the stairway.

"Who could that have been on the stairs last night?" I asked them. "Mrs. Evans was out until midnight. The MacDonald boy was on Long Island, and Mr. Whitefield is the only other person on the third floor."

The Sergeant favored me with a kindly look. "Well turn you into an investigator yet. If Adrienne Wells was so busy taking a drawing lesson, she wouldn't have been wandering around, so who was it?"

He picked up his hat. "I'm going up to see Whitefield again. He must be deaf if he didn't hear all that commotion."

And then Dirck and I went back to my apartment.

"Is candlelight kinder to your complexion," he asked as he slumped into a chair by the fireplace, "or do you always sit around in the dark?"

I put another log on the fire and paid no attention to him. He lighted a cigarette and smoked for awhile. "I wish we could get hold of some of these missing men," he said after a couple of minutes.

"A Faint Idea"

"DO YOU suppose all of the missing men did it?"

"Probably none of them. It's my guess," he said lazily, "that it was Ishi, the Jap, who's been upstate for a week. He did it to get her diamonds."

I looked up. "Did she have diamonds?"

"No, but it's as good a theory as the Sergeant has to offer."

I leaned back in the chair again. If Dirck knew anything he wasn't giving it away. I tried to figure out a logical reason for murder. Fragments of the interviews would creep into my mind. Adrienne Wells knew something and Mary Ann was too composed when the Sergeant asked her about Joan's half- or step-brother, or whatever it was. I never could keep them straight. For a moment or two I'd think I had an inkling and then the whole thing would tangle up again. I wondered mostly about Richard MacDonald and yet I was pretty sure he was honestly upset about his sister.

After five minutes of heavy thinking I couldn't restrain my curiosity, so I said, "Have you any idea who's responsible for all this?"

He smiled slightly. "I have a faint idea, Miss Lowarth, but how I can ever prove it is more than I know. That man Lathrop bothers me. From what I know of him he isn't erratic in the least, and why he hasn't shown up at his hotel all night gets me." He jumped to his feet. "You must be starving. Where do you want to have dinner?"

"Anywhere but the Knife and Fork," I said promptly. "I've had wheat cakes twice. Last night and this morning. I'd like a bear steak or a side of beef."

He groaned. "I knew you'd be hungry, so I cashed a check on the way up here this afternoon. Put on your bonnet and we'll go to a high-class place on Fourteenth Street. The steaks are four inches thick and the fried onions are something to cry over."

"I'm on my way," I said. "Steak will be fine and I want at least ten vegetables."

"Somehow," he said thoughtfully, "such a large appetite doesn't seem to go with that fragile look you have."

"I always fool people," I said, putting on my red felt hat. "That's why I'm not popular. It's too expensive to feed me."

He helped me into my coat. "There is one thing I'd like to do before we go. There are some drawings of Joan Kent's in her room that I'd like you to take a look at. I don't know a thing about them, so I can't tell whether they're good or not."

"If we don't hurry I'll eat two steaks," I said, "but for a small sum I'm willing to enlighten you on the world of art."

As we went down the hall I asked, "What will the Sergeant say if we poke around in there?"

"He gave me a key. Beautiful. He thinks I'm harmless."

He unlocked the door to Joan's apartment.

"You know, I thought the Sergeant was going to arrest me a while back," I said as we went into the room.

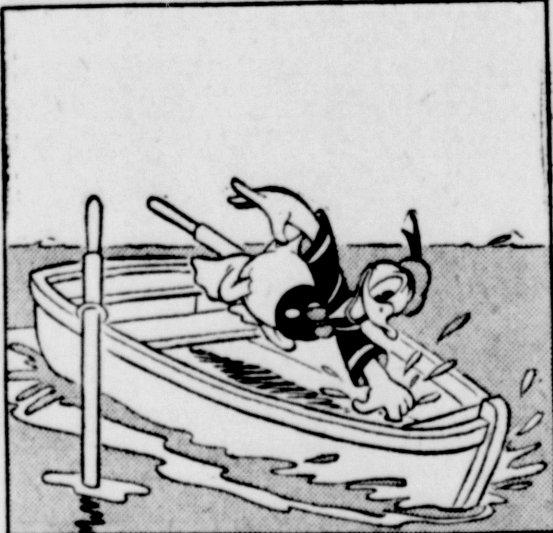

"There is a look that lurks in your blue eyes that baffles the Sergeant," Dirck turned on a lamp at the desk. "He doesn't know whether to fall for you or lock you up."

The Weather Prophet

The woodchuck in his burrow deep.

Awakened with a guilty start.

Then roused himself from winter's sleep.

To play his old accustomed part.

The calendar, this woodchuck knew.

It was, I never could keep them straight.

From out his winter's bed once more.

He took his note book from the stones.

And waddled swiftly to the door.

Prepared to write, in letters bold.

How long the weather would be cold.

He stepped across an open space.

And looked toward the heavens high.

Where sun, in its accustomed place.

Was streaming through the wintry sky.

Then wrote, at once, this strange advice.

Just six more weeks of snow and ice.

—Harry Brokaw.

Manager—I just learned this fellow you wrestle next Tuesday used to be a sailor.

Westler—Well, I ain't superstitious, Mike, but you wait till next Tuesday and watch me throw that salt over my left shoulder.

Wife—How's that, darling?

Husband—The batter doesn't always make a hit.

Johnny—Yes m; it's a boy who comes to school these days with a smile on his face.

Groundhog Day!

When the sun was shining brightly, and the weather it was cold.

The groundhog saw his shadow, and went back into his hole.

And some days since he went back in, the weather's not so good.

I've had to shovel much more coal and also burn more wood.

They have told that old fake story ever since I was a kid.

Of what they said the groundhog saw, and what he did.

If they would tell a story that had some little sense.

They would say the groundhog dug his hole beneath an old fence.

Accord, Feb. 1—Who said the old fashioned buck-saw was no good?

Not Fred Hendrickson, to be sure, because he uses one to cut as much as a cord of wood a day.

"You bet!" said Mr. Hendrickson yesterday. "I've been using this saw for the last 15 or 20 years and it's still in good shape. It's not as fast as one of those fancy electric buzz-saws, but it works all right for me."

He says he cuts small rock oak trees from a neighbor's property. Costs him $1 for enough to make a cord of wood for his stove.

"After I get the trees in my backyard, I just get to work and cut them up in one-foot lengths," he added. "I stop every now and then to smoke my pipe, but I can saw enough wood in a good day's work to last a week."

Farmers' Debt Position Better

Mortgage Foreclosures Drop to Lowest Point in Last Ten Years.

WASHINGTON.—Farm mortgage foreclosures, which led to rioting in several communities a few years ago, have declined to the lowest point in 10 years, the department of agriculture has revealed.

The debt position of farmers has improved considerably since 1933, the report compiled by the bureau of agricultural economics said. Land values have increased and the total farm real estate debt has declined to the lowest point in 20 years.

During the year ended last March 1, only 16.8 of every 1,000 farm owners lost their land through forced sales, foreclosure and tax sales. This compared with 17.4 farms the previous year and 28.3 in the year ended March 1, 1935, when foreclosures started to become less frequent.

Farms Change Hands.
Most of the forced sales last year were due to mortgage foreclosures, bankruptcy or transfers of titles to avoid foreclosures. The bureau reported 13.4 farms in each 1,000 changed hands because of one of those difficulties. In 1935 the number was 21 per 1,000 farms.

The number of forced sales on account of delinquent taxes was 3.4 per 1,000 last year, compared with 7.3 in 1935. Forced sales of farms to meet taxes has declined to the lowest point since 1926, the bureau said.

Farms changing hands through voluntary sales and trades were estimated at 28.2 per 1,000 in the 12 months ended in March this year, as compared with 29.9 in 1936 and 19.4 in 1935. Last year was the fifth consecutive year in which voluntary sales increased.

Using the years 1912-1914 as an index of 100 in computing land values of the last few years, the bureau reported an increase from 73 in 1933 to 84 in 1939.

Values Increase in East.
The increase during this period was most marked in the South Atlantic and East South Central states, where values rose 26 and 30 points respectively on the index figure.

The bureau reported a continued decline in farm mortgage debt during the last five years from $7,800,000,000 on January 1, 1935, to $7,100,000,000 on January 1, 1939. That was the smallest debt since 1919.

Foreclosures last year were heaviest in the thickly populated farm areas. In New England the foreclosure rate per 1,000 farms dropped from 18 in 1935 to 12.7 last year, while the West North Central states comprising most of the corn and wheat belts, dropped from 40.6 to 28.9 per 1,000 farms.

Foreclosures in the middle Atlantic states declined from 23.9 to 13.5 per 1,000 farms in the four years. East North Central states foreclosures dropped from 23.5 to 13.5 and South Atlantic states from 24.5 to 13.4. The West South Central declined from 22.9 to 15.5; mountain states from 35.7 to 24.2 and the Pacific coast states from 24.6 to 17.5.

Japanese Soften Flier Synonym; Rule Out 'Eagle'

TOKYO.—Japanese army and navy officers have suddenly found themselves face to face with a perplexing problem in ornithology.

Until a few weeks ago Japanese newspapers were in the habit of calling army and navy aviators "wild eagles." This had a resounding martial sound and generals and admirals beamed. However, an unknown patriot thumbing through a zoology reference textbook one day discovered that eagles are birds of prey who "kill all they can lay their talons on."

This didn't seem like proper publicity for the aviators and the "eagle" was about to become the "phoenix," a mythical bird, when it was realized the word sounded altogether too similar to the name of one of Japan's most famous wrestlers. Afraid of possible confusion in the public mind as to whether the nation's aviators were shooting down the Chinese planes or practicing half nelsons, the suggestion was rejected.

Officers are now busy trying to find a suitable bird to name the aviators after.

Heatless Light Nearer, Says Japanese Scientist

TOKYO.—A young Japanese laboratory worker claims to have made substantial progress in the scientific quest for a method of producing heatless light.

Hiroshi Nakamura, 29-year-old research worker in the botanical section of Tokyo Imperial university's science department, announced that he had discovered a nutrient that will prolong the life of luminous bacteria found in sea water.

He said that he had been able to prolong the light-giving period from 10 days to more than six months, and also to intensify the quality of illumination.

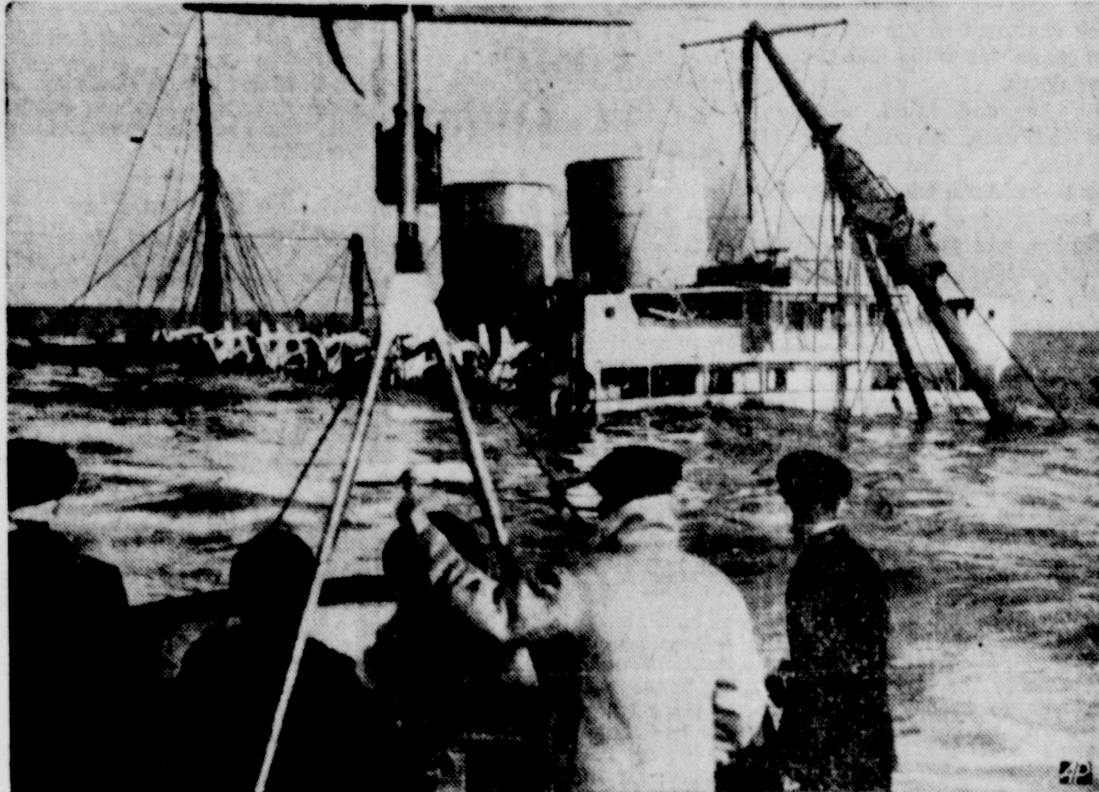

Japan, which seems destined for a long period of war-time conditions, was interested in the news not only because of the remote possibility of general illumination but because heatless light would be particularly valuable in munitions factories and for use in interiors during air-raid "black out" periods.

GOOD TASTE

How to say Good-bye to Guest Depends on Varying Conditions—With Only One Guest and No Maid, Hostess Goes to Front Steps or Elevator.

Whether to walk with a departing visitor down the path to the gate or around the corner of the public hall in an apartment house, or whether it is better to say good-bye at the front door, are questions that must be answered with qualifying "ifs." If the house is a formal one, the hostess rings a bell for whoever is on duty at the front door to help the visitor on with her (or his) coat and to open the door. If there is only one visitor and she a woman and if there is no maid to open the door for her and ring for the elevator, the hostess goes as far as the elevator (or as far as out on her front steps). But if any other visitors are present, she says good-bye to the one who is departing without herself leaving the room, since this would be deserting her other guests or guest.

If the host is present, he escorts departing visitors—either women or men—to the elevator or to the front steps. But if there are many guests and some one is on duty at the door, he too stays in the living-room.

When a Girl Pays Her Own Way

Dear Mrs. Post: The other noon another girl and I went to lunch in a favorite tearoom, and quite by accident saw there two men we know; in fact, one is my best beau. We joined them at their table, and at their invitation. After we'd all finished, we girls got up and walked ahead, letting the men take care of all the luncheon checks. Imagine our surprise when, a few moments later, they handed us our checks and said we'd left them on the table. Later, my friend told me that he considered we had been very unfair in taking their willingness to pay for granted. He also told me that as it happened that day, they weren't even prepared for extra luncheon checks because they both had been Christmas shopping. What I'd like to know is whether we didn't do the right thing by assuming that they would pay for us. It seems to me that they might have been humiliated had we assumed that they would willingly let us pay for ourselves. Answer: I think, on the contrary, that your manners were utterly unforgetable. Not only at this time, but at any time. It was certainly humiliating to them to be forced to hurry after you with the checks, because they couldn't pay. But your behavior would have been equally ill-bred had they been the richest men in town. Well-bred people do not let their accounts for others to settle—ever! Of course, if they had invited you beforehand to go to lunch with them, it would have been right to take their payment of the bill for granted. But not otherwise.

Learn Smart Dances In Home Lessons

Shine in the Lovely Tango
What a change in a girl's social life—when she teaches herself to dance well!

No one is eager to ask on dancing dates a girl who just "dog-trots" around the room, who, when the orchestra plays a glamorous tango, excuses herself with "I'm afraid I don't know those fancy steps."

But teach yourself smart steps from simple diagrams—and men are proud to take you to smart places. At dances, you have your pick of partners.

Follow our diagram for the Side-Close Step in the tango. Move with a cat-like tread, pause every time you bring your feet together and you'll be dancing in true tango style.

Count 1—Slowly step forward on left foot. 2—Step forward quickly on right foot. AND—Quickly place left foot a short distance to side of right foot. 3—Slowly close with right foot.

As easily you can learn other tango steps, all the popular dances. Our 32-page booklet tells how to do the rumba, conga, fox trot, Westchester, samba, tango, waltz and shag—also the Castle

EASY-TO-MAKE COTTON DRESS

MARIAN MARTIN
PATTERN 9311

With Spring fast approaching, it's time to "pick" your cottons. Go shopping at your favorite fabric counter and choose a brightly printed cotton fabric to make Marian Martin's Pattern 9311. The yokes, one piece with the back, are gayly scalloped, and there are darts below bust-line ease. Your waist is left smooth and tiny by the high-pointed waist seam, with softness above for bloused lines. See how nicely the neckline is shaped and notice how scallop-topped pockets add to the frock's style. A gay suggestion is to make the crisp, back-tying sash, the pockets, sleeves and neck bow all in vivid contrast.

Pattern 9311 may be ordered only in misses' and women's sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40. Size 16 requires 3½ yards 35 inch fabric.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS in coin for this MARIAN MARTIN pattern. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS and STYLE NUMBER.

Spring—in feminine language—means time for new clothes! Let MARIAN MARTIN'S NEW PATTERN BOOK show you the budget way to style. Need new afternoon or after-dark frocks? Interested in the "cotton field" or in "prints that bloom in spring"? Just take your "pick!" There are resort clothes, town wear, bridal finery, accessories, home styles and needle-tips. Patterns for every age are included. Quick—order your copy! BOOK FIFTEEN CENTS. PATTERN FIFTEEN CENTS. BOOK AND PATTERN TOGETHER, TWENTY-FIVE CENTS.

Shoes for Workers

New York, Feb. 2 (AP).—Some 55,000 pairs of army shoes left over from the World War are being distributed to WPA workers. To get them, the men had to prove relief status and sign a card saying they would not sell, barter or give them away. There were no sizes below eight. One man, whose size was 6½, said he would wear his old shoes inside the new ones.

Telephones, Not Guns

Springfield, Mo., Feb. 2 (AP).—Robbers used telephones instead of guns in Springfield's slickest bank raid and walked away with $4,000 before Union National Bank employees even became suspicious.

Teller Arthur Sanders was at lunch. Six telephone calls with fake messages took tellers away from adjoining cages. Suspicion of a clerk who saw two strangers loiter near Sanders' cage, then stroll away, led to discovery that $4,000 was missing. Officials deduced the loiterers had used a stick to drag currency within reach.

Kingston Has Close Call Against Ellenville, Winning 36-34

Field by Flowers Decides Contest In Final Stages

Visitors Start Scoring Early and Stack Up 26-15 Lead in First Half

Fighting gallantly to overcome its opponent's huge lead, the Kingston High School basketball machine tied and then went on to win the season's four star special at the municipal auditorium last night against Ellenville High.

Seemingly doomed to its first setback on the auditorium boards in 40 games, Kingston just noted through in a spectacular photo finish. The rabid local fans shook the rafters of the court as Harry Flowers sliced the cords on a layup with less than 35 seconds to go. Flowers' history-making and fame-saving deuce came after the score was knotted at 34-all.

For the first three quarters the Robertsmen pecked away and clearly and completely outplayed the present holders of first place, Ellenville, by its swift and deadly passing attack, led 31-25 as the fourth quarter got under way and it surely looked as though the Maroon and White cagers were in for an over-due pasting.

With the score 31-25, Kingston pushed up a little as Curran and Lindhorst found the opening and poured in deuces. Moe Nissenbaum, who played probably the best game of his high school career, came back with two fouls. Five minutes lingered on the timekeeper's watch. Ray Lindhorst breezed through and from a melée in front of the net, slammed home a field to make it 33-31. There was a minute and a half left.

Harry Flowers swished the strings with a foul and just one point separated the teams. Again Harry was fouled but this time he missed. But taking the ball on the rebound, he sifted in and registered on a layup making the score Kingston 34, Ellenville 33. Morris Lazarowitz returned to knot the count again with his important free throw.

Less than 35 seconds were left to play as Kingston got possession of the ball. Flowers received a pass from Curran and Lindhorst and hammered home the winning deuce of the game giving Kingston a hard-fought 36 to 34 triumph.

After Ellenville caught Kingston in the first period with its dazzling and outstanding passing, the visitors launched into an easy lead of 10-3 before the period expired. The helpless Maroon team tried to regain its touch but failed. Sparked by Moe Nissenbaum and Norm Solomon, Ellenville stalked far into a comfortable 26 to 15 topping at the end of the first half.

For Kingston Bob Curran, Harry Flowers and Ray Lindhorst took the spotlight. Moe Nissenbaum, Ellenville's all-around man, was its sparkler even in this defeat. Garry Distel and Norm Solomon also played four star ball.

A set of typical questions asked by bowlers, and the answers follow:

What are the division classifications for the city tournament?
Individuals with averages of 175 or better are Class A. Doubles teams of 350 or better, and teams from 375 up are Class A. Class C includes individuals with averages up to 150, doubles 300 or teams 750. Teams from 750 to 875 are Class B.

Can a bowler roll more than once in the 5-man event?
Yes. A man can appear with as many teams as he is a registered member of in various leagues. The first three scores he rolls in the 5-man event will go toward his all-events total.

What constitutes the all-events?
The all-events is the total number of pins rolled by an individual in the nine games comprising 5-man, doubles and singles.

Are substitutes permitted in the city tournament?
No. A team must use the five men it starts with unless a member becomes physically unable to continue.

How are averages figured for the various events?
Averages always are computed on a composite basis, if a bowler rolls in more than one league.

(Sample)—John Smith rolls in three leagues with the following averages: 190, 185, 180. His composite average therefore is 185 for any event in the tournament.

May a Class A bowler roll with a Class B partner in doubles?
Yes. But the team automatically becomes a Class A, unless Class A bowler decides to forfeit his all-events rating.

What is the entry fee for the city tournament?
The entry fee is $1.10 per man for each event. Thus a man pays $3.30 to compete in the all-events. Teams are $5.50, doubles $2.20 and singles $1.10.

What is the purpose of the city tournament?
City tournaments are conducted annually by city associations throughout the country in order to designate A, B, C champions in all classifications in the city.

How are city tournament awards made?
All city tournament prizes are cash.

When is the deadline for entries?
The deadline is midnight March 1.

Coach Miller Says 1940 Crop
Of Skaters Tops All Others

Schenectady, N. Y., Feb. 2 (AP)—The coach of America's Olympic speed skaters figures the North American Outdoor Championships, opening today, are as good a substitute as any for the more important, war-cancelled winter games.

Pete Miller, the mid-western skating enthusiast who helped pick, develop and coached the team only to see this season's scheduled winter Olympics blasted out of the picture by the European war, watched his squad warming up for preliminary heats with quiet confidence.

It's purely a hypothetical statement, he announced as the nation's stars flashed past, "but this Olympic team is the best we've ever had. We'd have had a good chance to win in Europe, but since that is impossible this North American team will have to do as a good substitute."

Miller thinks his squad, headed by National Champion Leo Freisinger of Chicago, will finish well up in the final, senior men's standings. Freisinger, Miller-discovered speedster, is favored to repeat his victory in the nationals last week-end. But other team members will be out after every race they can get.

"We're shooting the works," Miller said. "The better the team can do in this meet the more I'll like it."

The entire squad is entered in the three-day meet (opening at 1:30 p. m., E. S. T.). Included are defending North American Titlist Charles Leighton, Minneapolis; Eddie Schroeder, Al Kucera and Robert Hackewach, Chicago; Del Lamb, Milwaukee, and George Schmiek, Cedar Rapids, Ia.

Madeline "Maddy" Horn, Beaver Dam, Wis., who announced her retirement after winning the national women's crown for the fourth consecutive time at La Crosse, Wis., last week-end, arrived late yesterday and immediately became the overnight favorite to win the women's title.

Murray, Dolson at It Again
... Reds Keeping Lombardi

Managers who are rounding up "crack" teams to compete in that basketball tournament being arranged by the Y. M. C. A. and City Recreation Department are out of luck. . . . Only clubs that have played with organized rosters, and are fully equipped, since the beginning of the season will be allowed to enter. . . . This eliminates the "cinch" clubs from stealing the honors. . . . Trailers in the bowling leagues are consoled each year by guest speakers who called them good sports. . . . Somebody has to lose. . . . This good sport angle should interest some of the experts who are asked to bowl with the weaker clubs, but refuse. . . . What about the Silver and Gold Division fust? . . . The Bob Murray-Chet Dolson combination is back in the sports limelight. . . . These two court stars of yesterday are doing the honors for the Presbyterians in the Church Volleyball League. . . . Mention of their names calls for a silent prayer for that other great athletic star, and their close pal, the late Harold "Johnny" Johnson. . . . What's happening to pro basketball? . . . Now it's the Reds and Jewels as a combination, because the Reds couldn't draw.

With that model boat contest coming up, Captain Edward "Yank" Albright of Cornell Hose should be a busy man. . . . We'll bet every kid in the neighborhood will be after him to build them one. . . . And, if he has time, he'll do it. . . . Notices from the Red front office say Ernie Lombardi will be with the club again in 1940. . . . So the deal with Brooklyn is off. . . . And, Ernie wasn't cut $6,000. . . . The Reds chopped off $3,000 they paid him as a bonus for leading the league in hitting for 1938. . . . Eddie Mead and his new wife are bound for the west coast. . . . Buddy Baer may sign to fight Valentin Campolo in the Garden March 15. . . . Apostoli will beat Bettina tonight by a wider margin than the other time says Eddie Brietz of the A. P. . . . And so does Lymie Ellsworth, Sheriff Molyneux's night jailer. . . . With the 45's he gave Bennie McCoy, Connie Mack's infield will run into $115,000. McCoy phoned every club that bid for him to express his appreciation. . . . The Yanks could have had $35,000 for Walter Judnich, the outfielder, who now goes to the Browns for less than half the amount. . . . Promoters are after Joey Archibald and Tony Olivera for a Finnish relief fund bout in Washington, D. C., February 22. . . . That big sports carnival at William Lake on the 10th should get a nice piece of change for the Finns.

Jameson-Berg
Final in Florida

Coral Gables, Fla., Feb. 2 (AP)—Having recovered somewhat from the terrible near-freezing temperatures of last week-end, the citizens of Miami and their winter visitors were out in warm sunshine today to follow what promised to be one of the best women's golf matches in recent years.

Meeting in the 36-hole final of the annual Miami Biltmore tournament were Betty Jameson of San Antonio, the national champion, and Patty Berg of Minneapolis, four-time previous winner of this event. The match carried exceptional interest.

After some years of development, the two girls now apparently have reached the peak of their form. Without much doubt, they are the best in the country. Some veteran lookers at women's golf believe they are the best pair day in and day out, that this country ever has produced.

Neither had much difficulty reaching the final here. Patty simply breezed through her opponents, while Miss Jameson was extended only by Dorothy Kirby, the Atlanta star. In yesterday's semifinals Patty overwhelmed Marion Miley of Lexington, Ky., a Curtis Cup player, 5 and 4. Betty loaded to a 3 and 2 win over Shirley Ann Johnson of Winnetka, Ill.

Though the Texas girl holds the national title, today's match offered her an opportunity to make it official. For when she won her crown last summer, Patty was at home recovering from an operation for appendicitis.

More Than 200 Attend Meeting On Public Health

More than 200 people attended the meeting sponsored by the Ulster County Committee on Tuberculosis and Public Health last night in the Y. M. C. A. to hear Dr. Elizabeth Gardiner of the state health department talk on syphilis, and urge that those afflicted take advantage of the cures offered.

Representatives of the various institutions of the county, medical, educational and social, were among the gathering presided over by Dr. Hollis Ingraham, district state health officer. Other speakers besides Dr. Gardiner were Dr. L. E. Sanford, city health officer; Judge Joseph M. Fowler, president of the Ulster TB committee for 32 years; Arthur J. Laidlaw, superintendent of schools, and Robert L. Sisson, secretary of the Y. M. C. A.

After the talk by Dr. Walker, there was an open forum at which physicians, including Dr. J. S. Taylor, of the city laboratory and Dr. Elizabeth M. Parsons, answered questions, and a movie "With These Weapons" was screened depicting the fight against syphilis.

Dr. Gardiner's main point was a plea that those afflicted with syphilis seek treatment for the disease which can be cured. Quoting from governmental records, she said there are 6,500,000 cases of this scourge, and added, "We've got the physicians, money for clinical treatment and the main need is for cooperation of those who are suffering from the disease."

"If those afflicted would only say, 'I can be cured' then follow out the advice of trained physicians in treatment, medical science could stamp out this scourge in one generation, 20 years."

She touched on the history of syphilis, how it was brought to Europe by sailors of Columbus, returning from Haiti, and also on its effects—sufferers being an economic burden on their families and communities as long as they disregard treatment, the human misery the disease brings, including blindness and insanity, and how the germ enters the body and affects the various organs.

Dr. Sanford explained what the city of Kingston is doing to eradicate syphilis, pointing out that since 1929 when the local clinic was started 8,000 treatments have been given, 1,200 during 1939.

All of the other speakers urged cooperation with the medical bodies in their drive against the disease by those who have it and by social workers and public spirited citizens who are interested in the good health and welfare of the nation.

say, 6,000 persons had been shot down by the close of 1939, three months after Germany conquered the country.

As an example, one paper says the Bydgoszcz mayor, a Mr. Baranowski, "was ordered to clean the automobile of the Gestapo (German secret police) with his tongue. He protested and was brutally beaten up and later shot to death."

The paper adds that "shortly after the Germans took Bydgoszcz, 5,000 men, among them many priests, were shut up in the cavalry regiment stables in Gdanska street."

"They were so packed that they had barely room to stand. They remained thus penned for six weeks. At night the prisoners slept one on top of another."

Charging that "the bestiality of the German police and jailers passes all limits," the paper says that "in comparison the tortures of the famous Cheka (former Russian secret police) appear most humane."

Speaking of forced mass migrations, another paper says, "recently a train carrying children expelled from the Poznan region was seen arriving at Sandomierz in central Poland. When at a station a car was opened (it was a cattle car) 30 bodies were found of children who had died from the cold."

Such mass deportations, the paper states, "outdo in their systematic atrocity even the rapacious raids of the Tartars."

Those selected for deportation are given 10 minutes to leave their homes, and "they then are taken to the railway station, closed in boxcars and sent to some small station in central Poland near Warsaw or Lublin," it says.

(Arthur Greiser, German governor of the Poznan district which has been annexed to Germany, said Monday that he had no intention of forcing Poles to remove to make room for repatriated Germans from the Baltic and elsewhere, but that "several thousand" Poles who insisted on going to the so-called "governor's area" not yet annexed to the Reich were being given facilities for departure.)

(Greiser acknowledged that when he first took over, he ruled with a heavy hand, because the Poles had opened the prisons and madhouses.)

(He contended that the withdrawing Polish armies had tortured and killed some 13,000 Germans.)

One of the Polish papers declares that at Gdynia, port on the Baltic Sea, priests are forced to wash the sidewalks on their hands and knees.

Giving a long list of churches and hospitals which are declared to have been destroyed by bombing during the war, the papers say many of the churches which remain are being used as prisons, adding that the Germans occupying Warsaw "show a visible hostility to all religious sentiment."

The Jews, it declares, are "badly treated in particular," and at Warsaw, "since December 10 they have been obliged to wear yellow armbands under penalty of serious punishment. A kind of Ghetto has been created, with barricaded streets."

There are nearly 400 new cases of typhus every day in Warsaw, it says, and "on the pretext that they are hiding weapons, the Germans continue to shoot many people. A Finnish knife, a shotgun shell or an old sabre are considered weapons."

Balkan Entente Opens Parley

night be willing to go to war for Rumania if she were attacked by Germany or Russia.

Bound to Britain and France by a mutual assistance pact, Turkey was described by her foreign minister, Sukru Saracoglu, on the eve of the conference as Italy: "Not neutral but merely a non-belligerent."

Gafencu arrived here this morning and joined Saracoglu, General John Metaxas, premier of Greece, and Foreign Minister Aleksander Cincar-Markovic for a brief conference before lunching with Regent Prince Paul at White Castle overlooking the Danube.

A plan for "economic neutrality" under which Rumania, Greece, Turkey and Yugoslavia would sell supplies both to Germany and the allies but only to the extent of normal, peacetime trade was first for discussion in the closed conference (starts at noon EST).

The plan appeared to be Rumania's desperate substitute for her original request for ironclad military guarantees from her partners, to be invoked if necessary against either Germany or Soviet Russia. It seemed plain Rumania could not win such promises.

The plan to freeze Balkan exports to the belligerents at pre-war levels was supported by Rumania and Yugoslavia, according to reliable reports, as the best means of keeping the present battle of trade from turning into a battle of blood.

Civil Suit Due

Washington, Feb. 2 (AP)—The Justice Department said today that it would press a civil suit for income taxes against Al Capone as soon as a process can be served legally on him. The suit seeks $350,000 in taxes, plus interest and penalties for the 1924-1929 period.

Waterville, N. Y., Feb. 2 (AP)—William H. Jones, 73, remained overnight at the bedside of his sick friend, Fred Tetlock. In the morning, Jones was found dead, sitting in his chair, victim of a heart ailment. Tetlock was reported improved.

TOMMIES MAN THE TANKS

This photograph taken by an official British photographer shows a British tank outfit doubling off to man their mounts for war maneuvers in France behind the western front. Troops have seen little actual warfare on the front, but maneuvers keep them keyed up for the time when the war may flare into a "blood bath."

HOWITZERS MOVE UP BEHIND THE FRONT

French and British will count heavily on these 280 millimeter Howitzers, mounted on speedy tractors, if the lull on the western front suddenly flares into bloody warfare. The column is shown moving up along a snow covered road somewhere behind the front, presumably near Strasbourg.

Presbyterian Family Suppers and Study Hours

Thursday evening the first of a series of church family suppers and study hours was held in the chapel of the Roundout Presbyterian Church and was largely attended. The second in the series will be held next Thursday evening.

Following a fine menu served by the ladies of the church two classes were formed. The adult class was in charge of the pastor, the Rev. D. Linton Doherty, and took up the study of the church, from its beginning down through the middle ages. Next week the topic will be the church during the reformation.

Mrs. Doherty, wife of the pastor, was in charge of the junior class, which has arranged an interesting series of studies of interest to the young folks.

This annual event was inaugurated nearly a quarter of a century ago during the pastorate of the late Rev. Dr. Charles G. Ellis, and is held every February in the church chapel.

Kiwanis Club Installs Officers

Kiwanis Club last evening at the Governor Clinton Hotel installed the newly elected officers who will have charge during the ensuing year. Those installed and the speaker of the evening are, reading left to right: R. Frederick Chidsey, secretary; Joseph F. Deegan, vice president; Fred Snyder, director; Sam Messinger, director; Pratt Boice, president; Harry Ensign, treasurer; Edward Huben, past president; John A. Comstock, director; Franklin C. Haven, the speaker of the evening, who is Kiwanis International Trustee; George Matthews, director; Roger H. Loughran and Alderman Paul Zucca.

Kiwanians Have Good Time At Yearly Ceremony, Dinner

An exceptionally fine program of vocal music, an address by an international official of high rank, awards to a number of members who have made outstanding attendance records for long terms of years, installation of officers, a good dinner and a social hour and dancing combined to make the annual installation dinner of Kingston Kiwanis a most enjoyable affair.
The annual event was held at the Governor Clinton Hotel Thursday night and despite the numerous distractions just at this time there was a good attendance of members and guests, including the ladies.

Following the invocation by Past President Howard R. St. John, the singing of America and the Canadian National Anthem and service of the roast beef dinner, Edward M. Huben, retiring president, presented Past Lieutenant Governor Roger H. Loughran, who introduced the speaker of the evening, Franklin C. Haven, former district governor and present international trustee. Mr. Loughran said that it was an event to be favored with a visit from a district governor, head of the organization in the state—he remembered but one such occasion here—and much more of an event to be favored with the presence of one of the international officials.
Mr. Haven said that in 1936, at the end of his term as district governor, he had agreed to visit Kingston, but had been unable to do so. He was glad of the opportunity to make good on the present occasion.

He recalled that the Kingston club was the 19th Kiwanis club in the state to receive a charter (April 21, 1922) and he congratulated the club that it had since that time steadily maintained its membership, not only in quantity but qualitatively and today had a membership 50 per cent greater than when it was chartered.

Structure and Scope
Referring to the fact that Kiwanis International is 25 years old this year, Mr. Haven told somewhat the "structure and scope" of Kiwanis. He told of the system that took members from the ranks and placed them in positions of responsibility in the club until finally they were advanced to the office of president of the local club. The district leaders were selected from the presidents of the 110 clubs in the district today and so on, until some of these men, qualified by their interest in the work, circumstances in which they were placed, enthusiasm displayed and ability as leaders, ultimately rose to the highest position in Kiwanis International.

"The speaker said that the term 'democracy' had been so foolishly abused of late and had been applied to so many things, that it was difficult to tell just what it did mean, but, he said, 'if democracy means government by the governed, then Kiwanis is democratic.'"

"The success of Kiwanis through the years can be traced to one thing, leadership," said Mr. Haven; "leadership developed in the individual clubs." The training received in the work of Kiwanis, as individuals and as officers, was found to have resulted in making of its members better men in all respects, better husbands, better parents, better citizens and business men.

The speaker told of the demands made upon those who assumed the duties of higher offices in the organization, duties which occupied much of their time and which could be fulfilled only when there was a desire to give of one's best—and that without thought of any material gain.

Musical Program
Mr. Huben then called upon Kiwanis "incomparable past president and song leader," Paul A. Zucca, to present the first part of the entertainment feature of the evening. It consisted of some exceptionally fine vocal selections by Miss Gladys Tandler and William Simmons, with piano accompaniment by Roger Baer. Their first number was a duet, which was received with deserved applause and was an intimation of the treat that was to follow. Mr. Simmons and Miss Tandler continued the program with solo numbers and each responded to hearty encores.

The retiring president then presented to Pratt Boice the badge emblematic of his new position as president of the club, saying as he did so that it had been well earned by Mr. Boice's unswerving devotion to duty, loyalty, faithfulness and willingness to serve whenever called upon. Past Lieut. Governor R. Frederick Chidsey then conferred upon Mr. Huben the past president's pin, complimenting him upon a most successful year's service.

annunciation. A duet brought the fine program to a close.
Dancing, to music by Zucca's orchestra, brought to a close the most enjoyable evening.

Movie on Flag Will Be Shown

In the furtherance of education of the people of the United States in flag etiquette, the National Americanism Commission investigated the possibilities of producing a short sound technicolor motion picture depicting the history of and the correct display of the flag.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has created for the Motion Picture Producers' Association a new film entitled "The Flag Speaks." It runs about 27 minutes and is made in technicolor, with the great talent and technique of the motion picture industry.

This picture is a stirring, patriotic dramatization of the Stars and Stripes. It is timely, vital and a compelling screen document that will arouse enthusiasm throughout the nation.
The picture will be ready for showing in motion picture houses in every part of the country on February 22. This is an ideal time for premiere showings as it coincides with the birthday of George Washington.

Jack Rabin, chairman on Americanism on the Ulster County Legion organization, stated that all of the Legion Posts in Ulster county are contacting their local theatres requesting that "The Flag Speaks" be shown on the birthday of George Washington.
This picture, said Mr. Rabin, will unite all of America in a rededication to the nation for which the flag stands.

Stang to Give Address On 'Trial of Christ'

An outstanding feature of the program for Holy Week in the First Presbyterian Church on Elmendorf street will be an address by Assistant District Attorney Fred Stang on "The Trial of Jesus Christ from a Lawyer's Standpoint." This will be given on Thursday evening, March 21, and will be open to the public. The following night, Good Friday, the congregation will observe the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper and welcome new members.

At a meeting of the church session last night eight new members were received into the fellowship of membership in the First Church, and they will be publicly welcomed in the communion service next Sunday morning.

On Sunday afternoon and evening, February 25, the young people of the First Church will be hosts to the Youth Presbytery of North River. This organization is composed of representatives from each of the 29 churches of the Presbytery of North River; and it is expected that more than 200 young people will attend. A light supper will be served, and a program of inspiration particularly adapted to young people and featuring a notable speaker has been arranged.
